Created by Donnie Berkholz from the Mozilla Add-ons development team. Download Textmarker for Firefox The Firefox browser can be a dangerous tool. Some people use it on a daily basis to send stuffs to others via email, browse the web, make purchases online and other things. Such people might easily expose their personal information in the web browser. And if you want to protect your information from leaking to others, you need to remove private information and reset everything related to your account. Here are the steps to reset your info in the Firefox web browser. If you are using the Firefox browser, such as the Safari browser on the Mac, you can use the built-in reset feature to reset your things to default. To reset your Firefox to default settings, here are the steps you need to take: First, turn off the browser. If you are using a Mac, press the keyboard combination Command Option + Shift + Esc. If you are using Windows, press the Windows + F11 keyboard combination. In the Mozilla Firefox browser, locate the "Help" menu. Then locate the "Restart with a Reset" option. Select the option and click the "Reset Firefox" button. If you see all the applications you used in the last time, you can reset them to default as well. To see and remove unwanted apps, all you need is to locate the "Help" menu and then locate the "Troubleshooting Information" option. At last, you can click on the Reset Firefox option to remove the extra features or the unnecessary add-on. This will reset everything to the default configuration.
